

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers.

Loosen't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful. (Adv.)

FOE WILL RETREAT CLOSE TO FRONTIER

German Army, in "Semi-Retreat," Is Forced Toward Stand Behind Meuse and Scheldt.

(By Gen. J. M. G. Mallette)

Paris, Sept. 11.—(Copyright, N. Y. World).—The French and allied armies celebrated the anniversary of the battle of the Marne in their own way. I believe the first fortnight in September will be as portentous as was the battle fought four years ago between Paris and Nancy, on which depended the outcome of the war.

The victory of the Marne remains the capital fact of this war. The conflict has continued with stirring and surprising vicissitudes, and we have passed through a cruel trial. But France, by overthrowing the German armies, which after one month's operations considered themselves definitely victorious, saved Europe and the world.

We know the United States didn't ignore this. It is because there was the Marne that the Americans are now by our side and they will make the victory a decisive one.

Indeed, the fact of victory becomes incontrovertible. We have thought three months ago, in those trying moments when the Germans, following an accident of war, were again on the Marne, that on the anniversary of the Marne they would be in full retreat; that their retreat would even degenerate into a semi-retreat? The word retreat is not an exaggerated word to use if we judge it by the number of prisoners and the quantity of material taken. If the German rear guard had put up a stubborn resistance on both banks of the Oise in particular, we can be surprised at the way they gave in before the attacks of the British armies north of the Somme. Ludendorff must certainly have had a surprise there which he hasn't yet overcome.

The British armies entered the battle not only with extraordinary violence, rapidly manifesting a big superiority in the means of action, but their attacks have succeeded each other from the south to the north with a logic and co-ordination which must have given the German high command to understand that they were conducted by a deliberate and henceforth would be obeyed. Moreover, the German command must have felt bitterly humiliated to learn that these armies, which it considered considerably weakened by their recent reverses, had, on the contrary, benefited by the lessons of war and had reappeared more powerful than ever.

Here are results. Look at the map. The whole ancient Hindenburg line, which stretched from the region of Lille to St. Quentin and Le Prie, on which Ludendorff no doubt hoped to rest and regain his scattered divisions, is today on the point of cracking.

The quiet hinge at the crossroads to Douai and Cambrai is now free. Lens is surrounded and is being taken. The Canal du Nord has been crossed along its whole course from Barle to the west of Marquion to the junction of the south to the English front. The position from which, in 1917, they vainly tried to smash the Hindenburg line, it will be remembered that they succeeded in doing so with their tanks before Cambrai, but, unfortunately, the attack was not followed up completely.

That part of the Hindenburg line between Havincourt wood and St. Quentin is threatened with capture from the north. Debeney's and Humbert's French armies, pushed forward to the south, are once again past Ham. Tomorrow they will once again be before St. Quentin.

On the other side of the Marne, the German army, near the western portion of the Chemin-de-Dames in the rear. Owing to this army's advance, the Germans who had loitered on the Vesle are now retreating and recrossing the Aisne, closely followed by French and American divisions. Everything, therefore, is logically connected in this battle, which Marshal Foch is conducting in the French style. Today it stretches on a front of 200 miles from Rheims to Verdun. It is carried out without truce or respite. That is what gives it its characteristic. One feels the superior untiring will behind it.

There is every reason to believe Ludendorff is taking his demoralized and badly shaken divisions to new lines in the neighborhood of the frontier. These lines can be drawn on the map as follows:

Along the River Scheldt, passing through Antwerp and Ghent, then to Douai, then to the River Sambre and the River Meuse, passing through Mauberge by the canal connecting these two rivers; then along the River Meuse, passing at Mesieres or further south of the River Meuse near the Oise; then in the dark outskirts of the Ardennes forest, already the scene of many battles four years ago; finally along the Rivers Chiers and Ornes, which flow between Montmedy and Metz and which cover the mineral regions of Longwy and Briey.

By making this line, the Germans would cover their frontier, and thus they might hope, by a supreme effort, to hold back the invasion of Germany by the allies. The German press seems to be preparing the public for such a move. We see the Rhine appearing again in appeals to the German people to keep up their courage.

"Die Wacht am Rhein." What distances have been covered since August, 1914! Bombarded towns on the Rhine are crying out in distress.

We know it is said in America that, led by the Americans, the allies are marching toward the Rhine.

JUST MERE REFERENCE TO AVIATION PROGRAM

N. W. Rowell, President of Privy Council, Delivers Address to Exposition

Chicago, Sept. 11.—One millionth visitor has come and gone at the government war exposition here, and with the opening of the gates today the first person above that number entered. For last night, when 5-year-old Arthur Howard entered, bringing the six children, the gates were closed for the night.

A gently worded, though pointed, shot at the history of America's air plane program was given by N. W. Rowell, president of the privy council of Canada, in referring to the war work of his country, who addressed the exposition visitors.

"Canada has built airplanes," he said, "I believe you have, too."

The crowd understood and responded with an appreciative laugh.

"I can hardly realize that I am now entirely free from asthma and bronchial trouble. And just to think of going through a winter like this last without either of them, is great," says Mrs. J. A. Barry, who lives at 361 Twenty-fifth Ave., No. Nashville, Tenn.

"I contracted a cold while in the Spanish-American war, and it left me with a bronchial trouble and asthma. I have been a constant sufferer ever since, and part of the time I could not lay down at night."

"I was taking medicine all the time, but found nothing that would cure me. Mr. J. A. Wells advised me to try Lung-Vita. I did so and want to say that this is the best winter in twenty years that I have not been bothered with asthma and bronchial trouble. I certainly recommend Lung-Vita."

Lung-Vita is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. (Adv.)

WAR HAS DOUBLED NUMBER OF BRITISH WOMEN TOILERS

About 4,500,000 Now Are Employed, Their Average Time Being Fifty-two Hours a Week—Wages Are Good and Overtime and Bonuses Help.

London, Sept. 11.—At the present time there are approximately 4,500,000 women workers in Great Britain, compared with about half that number in pre-war times. Of these nearly 1,500,000 are permanent government employees. In London many new branches of labor developed as a result of the war, notably aircraft construction.

About 1,000,000 are engaged on munition work of all kinds, in actual government establishments and private firms under government control. For munition work customarily done by men, women over eighteen years receive a minimum wage of 67.50 for a forty-eight hour week. Girls under eighteen get about a dollar less. With overtime, however, for which they are paid at a higher rate, they earn considerably more, and where engaged on piece work many women earn from $10 to $20 and some even $25 weekly.

There are about 30,000 female drivers and conductors on trams, omnibuses and cabs, while on the railways there are more than 65,000 women employees. In London tram and omnibus drivers and conductors receive with a war bonus about $16 weekly, working twelve hours daily. The rate of wages throughout the country, 75,000 in banking and finance, and 3,000 as shipping agents. The average woman's normal working day is 52 hours. The number of women engaged purely in government work is about 1,500,000.

REIGN OF TERROR IN RUSSIA BEYOND GRASP OF PERSONS LIVING IN CIVILIZED COUNTRIES

World Correspondent, Hardly Daring to Tell Awful Facts Lest Americans Still There Be Made to Suffer, Says

No Such Scenes Have Been Witnessed Since the Tragic Days of Ivan the Terrible.

(By Arno Dosch-Fleuret.) (Copyright, N. Y. World.)

Stockholm, Sept. 7 (via London, Sept. 8).—On arriving in Stockholm the members of our advance party of American, Italian and Belgian officials and others who had escaped from Russia were astounded at the outside world's lack of grasp of the reign of terror they had just left.

All were in an emotional state over the narrowness of their escape, for we had been informed from Finnish sources that the Petrograd Commune tried to get us back after we had crossed the Russian frontier.

We were also worried concerning the other allied nations who had been left behind. We knew their danger, but apparently the world outside of Russia is not able to comprehend what that country is like.

We are half afraid to tell the simplest truths about conditions there for fear of the effects upon our allies still in the power of the bolsheviks.

Only here, back in civilization where men keep their word and murder is a crime, do we begin to comprehend how little the world can understand what Russia has come to in these last weeks. The lives of our allies there hang by such a slender thread that I hesitate to give even a glimpse into a state which is comparable only to the reign of terror in the French revolution, and in some respects is worse.

Returning from no battle front during the war have I felt that I had escaped from such horror. But, although I am writing calmly, I feel that I must help the American people to understand what Russia is today.

Desperate, Resourceful.

Russia is in the clutches of a handful of desperate but resourceful men. They had the most confidence in October because they promised peace. Once they got peace the mob began deserting and has been deserting ever since.

Now a state has been reached in which, as Maria Spiridovna, who helped to build up the power of the bolshevik last year, said this July in the all-Russian soviet the bolshevik no longer have the peasants with them and only a small proportion of the workmen. They have as Spiridovna said, members in the soviet, but they represent only themselves. This is obvious to anybody who is convincing in the words of Russia's most radical woman revolutionist.

No longer is it a question whether the bolshevik mean well. Two facts only are worth notice now.

Peasants Revoit.

The first is that the bolsheviks have entirely lost popular support and are keeping themselves in power only by the bayonets they still are able to buy. The peasants are in revolt everywhere.

For three weeks before I left Petrograd there had been a constant, sanguinary battle between the peasants and the red guard fifty miles south of Petrograd, and there was the same state of affairs on the northern shores of Lake Ladoga.

The red army is so weak it is only able to hold the front against the Czechoslovaks because the latter are advancing slowly and reorganizing the country economically as they ascend the Volga, making their progress slow but so slow that it gives the bolsheviks a chance to claim a check of the advance. Three weeks ago it became known that the bolsheviks intended to manufacture victories and revive the morale of their army. They have been doing so steadily since, giving to the outside world an effort of victories which do not occur.

But even this failed, for as Zinovieff, the president of the Petrograd soviet, announced, only 7,000 of the 30,000 men sent from Petrograd reached the front. He said this to sabotage by the

MODEL BARRACKS FOR STUDENT SOLDIERS

Standard Army Cantonment to Be Built on Campus of University of Tennessee.

Knoxville, Sept. 11.—(Special).—Five hundred youths who have enlisted in the students' army training corps will be housed and fed in model barracks and dining rooms by the University of Tennessee. The students' army opens on Oct. 1, announces President Brown Ayres. President Ayres has instructions from the war department to the effect that those who join the students' army training corps must be housed and fed and that they must remain on the campus for board and lodging. They will not be given leave during the war.

Barbara Bloom has always been used as a girls' dormitory and we have added need of it this year. Humes hall has been converted into a girls' dormitory and the rooms have been applied for. We may be able to use part of East and West college, but the main part of the boys will be quartered in barracks. There will be no "frat" houses here this year.

ADMITS ADOPTION OF SOCIALIST PLATFORM

Charles E. Ruthenberg, Principal Witness of Day in Eugene V. Debs Case.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 11.—Examination of witnesses was continued today at the resumption of the trial of Eugene V. Debs, socialist, charged with violation of the espionage law. The rapidity with which the case is being tried may result in the completion of the taking of testimony today, it was said, and counsel for the defense said the case may be in the hands of the jury tomorrow.

United States District Attorney E. S. Wertz yesterday devoted practically all of his efforts in the examination of witnesses to prove that Debs supported and adhered to socialist anti-war platform. This platform was adopted at the socialist convention at St. Louis immediately after the declaration of war by the United States. Counsel for Debs objected to the introduction of the anti-war platform and to the line of questioning by Attorney Wertz, but was overruled by the court, who held that the line of examination of the witnesses was proper as showing the "state of mind and intent" of the defendant.

The principal witness of the day was Charles E. Ruthenberg, Cleveland socialist, who is now serving a term of imprisonment for obstructing the draft. He admitted the adoption of the socialist platform at St. Louis. He said Debs was not at the St. Louis meeting, but admitted under questioning that the majority report at the meeting was approved by a majority of the party in the United States.

Before Ruthenberg was called, several witnesses, including newspaper reporters, court stenographers and federal officers, were examined, their testimony being taken for the record on different occasions. Debs practically stated that the St. Louis war program had his support.

KAISER VISITS KRUPP GUN WORKS AT ESSEN

The Hague, Sept. 11.—The Kaiser has just paid a visit to the Krupp gun works at Essen, according to information from Berlin today.

FARMERETTE GARB APPEARS.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 11.—(I. N. S.).—The farmerette costume has just made its appearance in the north.

So anti-war was the resistance on the Archangel-Vladivostok line that the allies might have come own any time in the past month. The Czechoslovaks are not in Moscow now only because they wish to organize carefully.

Even with the respite the allies and the Czechoslovaks have given the bolsheviks the last named have been unable to get troops.

The mobilization at Petrograd, where the assembled men feared the recruiting commissioner and defied him to use them to go to the front.

The red army cannot be taken seriously. It is now hopelessly disorganized, since the officers of the old regime, formerly directed it are declared en masse to be counter revolutionary.

Only the allies or the Czechoslovaks wish to make a drive with 20,000 men they can go to Moscow.

In talking with a force of people, I was surprised to find that not more than 5 per cent. of the Russians favor the bolshevik dictatorship or sympathize with its claims. So little interest is felt in its proclamations that it has been unable to cause a general massacre of the bourgeoisie, although it has appealed repeatedly to the workmen to kill.

Blood Madness.

The second crucial fact is that the bolsheviks have instituted a reign of terror as the only means to maintain the dictatorship. This is a sure sign that the bolsheviks are in a desperate situation.

Only the allies or the Czechoslovaks wish to make a drive with 20,000 men they can go to Moscow.

Conditions are even worse in the provinces. The Bolsheviks have reached a state in consequence of frequent condemning of men to death that they are hardly recognized after several months' absence. Executions are so frequent in Moscow by orders of the revolutionary tribunal that Maxim Gorky, used to prevent such a scene as if arranged for battle. This is a city where hundreds of isolated rifle shots are heard every night.

The Letts finally refused to shoot any more, although threatened with death themselves if they disobeyed. So Chinese troops are now the executioners.

In every city in Russia there are the same scenes of terror.

Only the allies or the Czechoslovaks wish to make a drive with 20,000 men they can go to Moscow.

START THE BILE!

The bile in our bodies is necessary to digestion, nutrition and life. Yet, if not secreted from the blood by the secreting action of the liver, it will poison the system and destroy life. Sometimes the liver gets sluggish and doesn't secrete bile normally. Then it's up to us to "start the bile," to make the torpid liver act. Perhaps the most popular preparation to take and one of the oldest is Carlsberg's Liver Powder, which is free from alcohol and has been a favorite household medicine for 25 years. A few doses are sufficient. It is used for constipation, sick headache, chronic rheumatism, blood diseases and most stomach, liver, kidney and bladder troubles. Carlsberg's Liver Powder is not unpleasant and should be taken occasionally to keep the liver active and prevent biliousness. Two sizes—2-oz. bottle, 25c; family size, $1. At drug-stores.
